

I believe the current Indiana law concerning telemarketing to be a success and would not wish to see it weakened by allowing "established business relationship" to be used as a loop-hole through which marketers could again enter my home and assault my privacy.

The ring of my phone does not distinguish wanted from unwanted callers, unlike e-mail or postal mail. Please allow me and my family to continue to have the peace it has given us.